Details:

We're looking for a Nutritionist!

Integrative Health Practices (IHP) is an integrative medicine practice located in Ellicott City. We opened in October 2017, and have a busy practice that includes two physicians, two physician assistants, a dietitian/nutritionist, a psychotherapist, a massage therapist, an acupuncturist, a reiki practitioner, a breathwork practitioner, and a nurse who does IV nutrient infusions.

The care provided by the nutritionist is a core part of our practice, as we aim to identify underlying causes of illness, and dietary change and use of supplements is foundational for most of our patients. Our dietitian must be familiar with the full range of diets that many patients use—weight loss, paleo, low FODMAPs, ketogenic, low lectin, elemental, etc—and how to make dietary and associated behavioral changes that are practical and sustainable. S/he must also be familiar with common GI conditions—reflux, SIBO, IBS, intestinal hyperpermeability, food intolerances—and how to manage them with diet and supplements.

We are currently in the process of recruiting for a licensed nutritionist.

We are looking for someone to work a day or a couple of half days per week, with flexibility to add hours as the practice grows. We pay a portion of revenue generated; have been taking insurance, but are thinking that in the next phase of the practice we may accept cash-only for dietary services.

We are interested in finding someone with strong nutritional counseling experience, and will engage in a mutual learning process to achieve consistency of approach to the various conditions across our practice between the dietitian and our physician practitioners.

We have a fulfilling practice that provides great opportunity for learning and clinical growth! Our website (www.integrativehealthpractices.org) provides specifics. If you are interested in talking with us, please communicate with William Rollow MD MPH, our practice director, at wrollow@integrativehealthpractices.org.
